A Snapshot in time: On Snapshot day, multiple monitoring teams assess water quality and habitat throughout the Carson River Watershed at the same time.

At Snapshot Day, both you and your students will:

- ✓ Engage in a hands-on science field study
- ✓ Collect valuable water quality information
- ✓ Conduct habitat assessments
- ✓ Promote environmental stewardship within the Carson River Watershed

Participants interact with resource professionals, share ideas about limiting their impacts on water quality, and gain hands-on field experience.

What people are saying:

"Snap Shot Day engages young adults in the field environment, and helps instill in them the impotence of environmental stewardship and science-based observation of watersheds."

"Hands on education / conservation events held on the river actively engage students with their community and surroundings. These events help to improve the quality of education for our students and promote a stewardship ethic toward our natural environment."
