Project Learning Tree (PLT) and Project WET are internationally recognized curriculum providers designed to teach students “how to think, not what to think” about issues that face us today through the study of our natural world.

Lessons are multidisciplinary and aligned to the common core standards and current science and social studies standards.

Educators will participate in hands-on lessons and leave with the recently released Project WET K-12 Curriculum and Activity Guide 2.0 and the PLT PreK-8 Environmental Education Activity Guide, with more than 90 lessons for your classrooms and audiences.
